Operations and Maintenance Data Management Software

An AllMax Software dealer program will enable you to provide high-powered data management solutions for plants and facilities at any level. AllMax software is competitively priced, user friendly and provides optimal levels of functionality and flexibility, resulting in dramatically lowered costs and optimized efficiencies. And, we back our products with world-class customer service and technical support.

Become a Reseller

To qualify for this partnership program, you will need to complete an application. Once approved, simply register sales leads with us. Close a sale and receive a 10% commission on any software sold. We will assist you if requested. You will have six months to close a sale, at which time AllMax will have the option to pursue that contact directly. There are no minimum requirements and no fees assessed for you to get started. You can be listed on our web site as an AllMax Software Reseller at no cost.

Dealer Program

To become a dealer, you will be required to attend two days of operations software training, including Operator10[®] water, wastewater and biosolids and Synexus[™] pretreatment data management applications, and one day of Antero[™] maintenance software training. These sessions will demonstrate the features and functions of the programs and proper methods used for training, setup and support of the AllMax programs.

Once requirements 1-3 are met (see below), your company will become an "AllMax Software Certified Partner". Certified Partners are recommended and authorized to provide product, training, setup and other services. As a Partner, you will receive a 25% discount on software and a listing on the AllMax web site with links to your company web site. We will provide literature, demos, references in your area when available, and other sales information as needed to assist you in representing all of the AllMax software products. Partners receive advance notices on software upgrades and are invited to provide input regarding new development of future versions of the programs. Co-op advertising and participation in trade shows is also available to assist you in promoting AllMax Software.
